Military Muscle

The Japanese militarists and politicians who made the decision to go to war against the world are on one of the hottest spots in history.

Without claiming more than the circumstances justify, Americans can point to the frontal assault on the Japanese homeland by their navy as one of the most spectacular exhibitions of military muscle ever staged.

They may be sure that the Japanese—not only the officials but the ordinary civilians—know what it means. Americans would know what it meant if the Japanese fleet could enter the waters off the Pacific coast and launch attacks on San Francisco, San Diego and Los Angeles. It would mean that Japan, having calculated the risk, was able to justify a challenge for a naval showdown. It would mean that if the showdown turned out unsuccessfully for their navy that their homeland would be wide open to invasion. It would mean a collapse of confidence in their first line of defense—a loss of prestige that would undermine civilian morale. Americans know these things because they remember how they felt after the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, which was only an outpost. The Japanese have sustained the loss of security that goes with inability to defend outposts; they are confronted now with loss of security in their homeland. It is a grave crisis for them.

No one may know yet how the war in the Pacific will be fought. Not even the strategists who are planning it can be certain what all the results of the moves they have conceived and executed are going to be. But there is coming to be in the United States, and almost certainly in Japan, too, an awareness that this is not the same kind of conflict being carried on in continental Europe. It is, rather, the kind of assault practiced in two major wars on Great Britain—and practiced so successfully both times that Britain could not have survived without the intervention of a second major naval power, the United States. Japan, with no ally to come to its rescue, probably understands instinctively that defeat has come nearer than Americans are able to realize. Only an island power can clearly comprehend what is implied in naval blockade and assault.

Warfare Without Guns

Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, speaking in St. Louis last week, talked frankly about international steps to outlaw a kind of warfare which threatens world peace more seriously than the possibility of another outburst of belligerency. In fact, belligerency may be viewed as only the climax of the economic war which traditionally has set nations against each other and precipitated the clashes of interests that have brought on wars.

It is deeply significant that the first tangible policy move in Washington following the conference at Yalta was a presidential request for congressional action on the Bretton Woods proposals. It may well be that while observers were concentrating on political negotiations in the Big Three parley, the nub of the negotiations actually was concerned more with economics than politics. Thus, in the quiet quid of diplomacy, the United States holds the undoubted advantage of being the world's greatest creditor nation, an asset which may loom larger in the prospect of international security than the world's largest navy.

Economic aggression waged with currency manipulation, Mr. Morgenthau pointed out, led up to the shooting war now being waged. It helped produce the depression also, he admitted—perhaps the first time any spokesman for the Roosevelt administration ever admitted the depression was not caused by Herbert Hoover. "These experiences made it plain that monetary cooperation must be worldwide," Mr. Morgenthau declared. The result of that conclusion was the Bretton Woods conferences, intended to mark the end of economic isolationism. The agreements reached there, Mr. Morgenthau says, "represent a concrete avenue toward international cooperation on the economic front."

There is no better omen for accomplishment in the direction of cooperative security than evidence that it is being sought through economic as well as political and military channels. The ultimate cause of war is not political, but economic, friction and unbalance.

It Would Help

Vice President Truman's political sagacity is revealed in a report that he is taking the lead in a move to invite President Roosevelt to give Congress a first-hand report on the conference at Yalta.

It being improbable that Mr. Truman would do anything contrary to Mr. Roosevelt's wishes, it may be assumed the latter is eager to explore the possibilities of this technique. Mr. Roosevelt was criticized after the conference at Tehran for failure to take Congress into his confidence.

The technique has been made attractive by Prime Minister Churchill's comprehensive reports to the house of commons—reports which have given Americans a better grasp of some aspects of the war than they have received from their own officials. While it may be claimed that Mr. Churchill has unique ability for creating an impression of candor without actually telling everything he knows, it would be a worthwhile experiment for Mr. Roosevelt. Of the two, he has the greater need at the moment for a generous gesture to strengthen legislative confidence in the purposes and performances of his administration.

At the same time he could offset some of the damage done by his long lapse of contact with the public—a lapse in which the press was obliged by the hush-hush on news of his whereabouts to say nothing about the obvious fact that most of the policy-making officials in Washington were out of the country. There has been an awkward interval in the processes of public information. Mr. Roosevelt could make no more popular decision than to explain in full what he has accomplished.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, February 20.

EXCITING and thrilling events of sudden and surprising nature may be expected to give color to this day. These may be influential in the realm of the home, domestic and social activities, with romance and its celebrations proving adventurous and gay. However, there may be pleasant and profitable situations in finance, the professions, business of an artistic or cultural character, or connected with the more gracious and happy relations of life. All should combine for unanticipated happiness and enjoyment, with possible change or innovations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of very exciting and unexpected developments, in which domestic, social or affectional interests are emphasized, although there are also lucrative and progressive conditions in finances, credits, arts and all those business enterprises devoted to the personal, cultural, social and romantic phases of life. These might demand change of environs, needed changes in home plans and associations, but happy, flourishing and gay as well as adventurous.

A child born on this day will have strong domestic, social, artistic and constructive talents and originality, in making a happy and romantic career.

The Throttlebottom Touch

Victor Moore, as Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing," brought the office of Vice President of the United States out of obscurity and invested it with a good many endearing qualities. No real-life holder of the post has ever approached Mr. Moore's double triumph.

John Nance Garner gave the Vice Presidency a somewhat humorous and folksy touch, and Henry A. Wallace was anything but obscure in the job. But that's about as far as it ever went.

Now, however, we have hopes. They arose as we looked at the picture of Vice President Truman seated at a piano, with the sultry Miss Lauren Bacall half-reclining atop the instrument. There, we said, now that looks like something Victor Moore would do—Victor Moore, who has spent the recent years of his professional life practically smothered by beautiful girls in every one of his shows.

We hope that Vice President Truman will not find the duties of his new office so burdensome that he will renounce these occasional touches of pure Throttlebottom. Perhaps it's an expensive luxury, but we rather like the idea of a little conscious clowning in official Washington now and then. It ought to be a nice change from the unconscious variety which we frequently get from the bureaus and Capitol Hill.

At last we have the old-timers stopped cold! Who, among them, can remember a worse winter?

Stainless steel stockings are a postwar possibility says a steel industry spokesman. Phone the riveter—Mom has a runner!

Good Grief! Do We Have To Coax Em?

Work-or-Else Draft Means Army Training

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 — Men drafted under the recent work-or-else order but physically unfit for army duty may be put to work in government-owned plants as uniformed soldiers.

Reporting this today, the War department said they first will be given an opportunity to volunteer for jobs in essential industry.

Even though unqualified for army service, all men inducted under the directive will be given four weeks of basic military training before their assignment or release to inactive duty status. Physically qualified men will be given the usual military training.

Those physically disqualified will receive their training at Camp Ellis, U. S. Army Service Force training center near Peoria. A "sizeable group" is scheduled to arrive at the camp within a few days, the department said.

Upon completion of the training at Camp Ellis, the men will be given an opportunity to volunteer for essential work. Those volunteers possessing skills will be placed on inactive status in the enlisted reserve from which they may be returned to active duty if necessary.

Those who fail to volunteer but who possess skills needed in war plants may be put to work in government-owned plants. The remainder will be assigned to army installations.

The work-or-else order was issued by War Mobilizer James E. Byrnes to cover men who left jobs in essential industry or changed jobs without draft board permission.

The department said the training course at Camp Ellis has been designed to take into account the physical limitations of the trainees. They will be given a "thorough" indoctrination in military courtesy and discipline and instruction in rifle marksmanship.

Lend-Lease Cargo Helps Russians' Winter Drive

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—Russia's winter drive into Germany, Admiral Emory S. Land informed congress today, was bolstered by 3,447,000 tons of lend-lease cargo shipped during the last six months of 1944.

Urging extension of the lend-lease program for another year beyond its June 30 expiration date, the head of the war shipping administration told the house foreign affairs committee the shipments to Russia were "substantially in excess" of earlier goals.

They included, he said, urgently needed foodstuffs for the Red armies, munitions, equipment for Soviet war industries, railway equipment and motor trucks.

Shipping losses in the supply routes to Russia, Land told the committee, "are now negligible on both the North Russia and Mediterranean routes."

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

How Foodstuffs Relate To Tooth Decay

By HERMAN N. BUNDENSEN, M. D.

IF YOUR teeth are already decayed and you use a well-balanced diet, even fortified with vitamins, it is hardly probable that the tooth decay that has already occurred will be relieved, because once the teeth have formed they are not re-built. It is also a fact, however, that proper diet, used by the expectant mother, aids in assuring that the child's teeth will be well-formed and resistant to decay throughout life. Furthermore, during early life, giving the baby and older child the proper food may be a factor in lessening the amount of tooth decay.

A good, balanced diet means one that has plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, meat, fish, eggs, whole-grain cereals, butter and some source of vitamin D, such as cod-liver oil, viosterol, or similar substances. There is no special diet for dental health other than this ordinary well-balanced one.

During the period of most rapid growth, that is during infancy and childhood, it is especially important that milk be given in sufficient amounts because it is the best known source of calcium or lime, which is needed for building bones and teeth. But the calcium will not be used by the body unless vitamin D is also present. If a person eats enough of the right kind of foods and there is no interference with their absorption and use by the body, it is not necessary to take additional vitamins. The best way to get the vitamins is by eating the proper foods. However, the physician will decide just when additional vitamins are needed, and will prescribe the proper ones in the right amounts.

In recent years, another fact about tooth decay has been found: That there is some relation between the eating of sweets, excessive amounts of starches and sugars, and the occurrence of tooth decay. The decay of the teeth results from the action of acid which is produced by germs which live in the mouth and grow on bits of sweet or starchy foods which stick to the teeth. Hence, it is important that if candy or sweet, sticky foods are eaten, the teeth be thoroughly brushed after eating, to get rid of any of these foods which may have clung to the teeth.

It is thought that if the diet is limited in sugars and starches it may be possible to control, if not completely prevent, the tooth decay. In persons having a great deal of tooth decay, it may be a good plan to substitute fresh fruits for sweets.

The exact causes of tooth decay have not been determined, but it would appear that there is a great deal known about the process. For example, the use of a well-balanced diet early in life and later on, together with the avoidance of excessive amounts of sweets and starches, may do a great deal to limit damage to the teeth. Tooth and mouth cleanliness is helpful.

Questions and Answers

Always Hungry

I always have a hungry feeling and feel that I must have several snacks between meals. I feel faint, sick and hungry.—Mrs. G. W.

Answer

Symptoms such as you describe may come from a condition known as hypoglycemia, in which there is a deficiency of sugar in the blood. For this reason it would be a good plan to have a test of your blood sugar made.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, February 20.

EXCITING and thrilling events of sudden and surprising nature may be expected to give color to this day. These may be influential in the realm of the home, domestic and social activities, with romance and its celebrations proving adventurous and gay. However, there may be pleasant and profitable situations in finance, the professions, business of an artistic or cultural character, or connected with the more gracious and happy relations of life. All should combine for unanticipated happiness and enjoyment, with possible change or innovations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of very exciting and unexpected developments, in which domestic, social or affectional interests are emphasized, although there are also lucrative and progressive conditions in finances, credits, arts and all those business enterprises devoted to the personal, cultural, social and romantic phases of life. These might demand change of environs, needed changes in home plans and associations, but happy, flourishing and gay as well as adventurous.

A child born on this day will have strong domestic, social, artistic and constructive talents and originality, in making a happy and romantic career.

The Throttlebottom Touch

Victor Moore, as Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing," brought the office of Vice President of the United States out of obscurity and invested it with a good many endearing qualities. No real-life holder of the post has ever approached Mr. Moore's double triumph.

John Nance Garner gave the Vice Presidency a somewhat humorous and folksy touch, and Henry A. Wallace was anything but obscure in the job. But that's about as far as it ever went.

Now, however, we have hopes. They arose as we looked at the picture of Vice President Truman seated at a piano, with the sultry Miss Lauren Bacall half-reclining atop the instrument. There, we said, now that looks like something Victor Moore would do—Victor Moore, who has spent the recent years of his professional life practically smothered by beautiful girls in every one of his shows.

We hope that Vice President Truman will not find the duties of his new office so burdensome that he will renounce these occasional touches of pure Throttlebottom. Perhaps it's an expensive luxury, but we rather like the idea of a little conscious clowning in official Washington now and then. It ought to be a nice change from the unconscious variety which we frequently get from the bureaus and Capitol Hill.

At last we have the old-timers stopped cold! Who, among them, can remember a worse winter?

Stainless steel stockings are a postwar possibility says a steel industry spokesman. Phone the river—Moon has a runner!

Good Grief! Do We Have To Coax Em?

Work-or-Else Draft Means Army Training

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Men drafted under the recent work-or-else order but physically unfit for army duty may be put to work in government-owned plants as uniformed soldiers.

Reporting this today, the War department said they first will be given an opportunity to volunteer for jobs in essential industry. Even though unqualified for army service, all men inducted under the directive will be given four weeks of basic military training before their assignment or release to inactive duty status. Physically qualified men will be given the usual military training.

Those physically disqualified will receive their training at Camp Ellis, all to Army Service Force training center near Peoria. A "sizeable group" is scheduled to arrive at the camp within a few days, the department said.

Upon completion of the training at Camp Ellis, the men will be given an opportunity to volunteer for essential work. Those volunteers possessing skills will be placed on inactive status in the enlisted reserve from which they may be returned to active duty if necessary.

Those who fail to volunteer but who possess skills needed in war plants may be put to work in government-owned plants. The remainder will be assigned to army installations.

The work-or-else order was issued by War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes to cover men who left jobs in essential industry or changed jobs without draft board permission.

The department said the training course at Camp Ellis has been designed to take into account the physical limitations of the trainees. They will be given a "thorough" indoctrination in military courtesy and discipline and instruction in rifle marksmanship.

Lend-Lease Cargo Helps Russians' Winter Drive

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Russia's winter drive into Germany, Admiral Emory S. Land informed congress today, was bolstered by 3,447,000 tons of lend-lease cargo shipped during the last six months of 1944.

Urging extension of the lend-lease program for another year beyond its June 30 expiration date, the head of the war shipping administration told the house foreign affairs committee the shipments to Russia were "substantially in excess" of earlier goals.

They included, he said, urgently needed foodstuffs for the Red armies, munitions, equipment for Soviet war industries, railway equipment and motor trucks. Shipping losses in the supply routes to Russia, Land told the committee, "are now negligible on both the North Russia and Mediterranean routes."

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

How Foodstuffs Relate To Tooth Decay

By HERMAN N. BUNDEN, M. D.

IF YOUR teeth are already decayed and you use a well-balanced diet, even fortified with vitamins, it is hardly probable that the tooth decay that has already occurred will be relieved, because once the teeth have formed they are not rebuilt. It is also a fact, however, that proper diet, used by the expectant mother, aids in assuring that the child's teeth will be well-formed and resistant to decay throughout life. Furthermore, during early life, giving the baby and older child the proper food may be a factor in lessening the amount of tooth decay.

A good, balanced diet means one that has plenty of milk, fruits and vegetables, meat, fish, eggs, whole-grain cereals, butter and some source of vitamin D, such as cod-liver oil, viosterol, or similar substances. There is no special diet for dental health other than this ordinary well-balanced one.

During the period of most rapid growth—that is, during infancy and childhood, it is especially important that milk be given in sufficient amounts because it is the best known source of calcium or lime, which is needed for building bones and teeth. But the calcium will not be used by the body unless vitamin D is also present. If a person gets enough of the right kind of foods and there is no interference with their absorption and use by the body, it is not necessary to take additional vitamins. The best way to get the vitamins is by eating the proper foods. However, the physician will decide just when additional vitamins are needed, and will prescribe the proper ones in the right amounts.

In recent years, another fact about tooth decay has been found: That there is some relation between the eating of sweets, excessive amounts of starches and sugars, and the occurrence of tooth decay. The decay of the teeth results from the action of acid which is produced by germs which live in the mouth and grow on bits of sweet or starchy foods which stick to the teeth. Hence, it is important that if candy or sweet, sticky foods are eaten, the teeth be thoroughly brushed after eating, to get rid of any of these foods which may have clung to the teeth.

It is thought that if the diet is limited in sugars and starches it may be possible to control, if not completely prevent, the tooth decay. In persons having a great deal of tooth decay, it may be a good plan to substitute fresh fruits for sweets.

The exact causes of tooth decay have not been determined, but it would appear that there is a great deal known about the process. For example, the use of a well-balanced diet early in life and later on, together with the avoidance of excessive amounts of sweets and starches, may do a great deal to limit damage to the teeth. Tooth and mouth cleanliness is helpful.

Questions and Answers

Always Hungry

I always have a hungry feeling and feel that I must have several snacks between meals. I feel faint, sick and hungry.—Mrs. G. W.

Answer

Symptoms such as you describe may come from a condition known as hypoglycemia, in which there is a deficiency of sugar in the blood. For this reason it would be a good plan to have a test of your blood sugar made.

ound in cellars! Suppose—somedy else was there!"
"An additional reason for going!
besides, cellars are dark—even in aytime."
"I won't tell you how to get in!"
Then I'll run up just to see if huboccy is fumbling around there.
I Dr. Davis was murdered—somedy might be. In a few more minutes this place is going to be waked up by sirens and headlights. Attention will be on Danielle's house."

He had risen. "I think this is an excellent time to be in that cellar.
Besides—I used to play games in the wine cellar. It was fun."
Sarah glanced at the girl opposite her. Firelight emphasized the concentration with which Danielle was looking back at Aggie. The girl's head finally shook and she said:
"Don't go there, Aggie. It might be—dangerous. And this isn't the kind of business for a—a person like you to—get into."
"Danger?" he repeated. "You mean—I should stay out of it because it's dangerous?"
Danielle nodded. "That's exactly what I mean! After all, you're a professor—not a cop. You can't go barging into a cellar at night."
He seemed perplexed. "But—I I'm keen! I'd enjoy beating Wes to it! I don't mind danger."
He noticed the way in which his aunt was regarding the girl. "Right, Sarah. Send her out of the room—and give me the dope. And—Danielle. Remind me to tell you about the time I was lost on the ice floe for a week—and a night in Cam-boked! Jack Browne and the servants would be asleep on the upper floors. He did not wish to waken them."
He came to the edge of the trees, moved from one lilac to another,
and finally onto the side porch.
There was not a light in the clubhouse. He swung out a screen. The first window was locked; the third was not. Aggie raised it and went in.
He smelled moth flakes when he passed the stuffed moose head. He used a flashlight once, for less than a second, to find a way through the tables and divans in the main lounge. In the same minute, he passed through the dining room to the pantry and from the pantry into the stony, institutional small of the club kitchen. He found the door to the main cellar, carefully opened it, entered, closed it, and started down the steps.
When he was midway on them,
he listened. An automatic pump was going somewhere below. It made a muffled, rhythmic noise, but, between its beats, there were minute silences. Aggie heard nothing in them. This cellar had windows—opaque squares that let in little light by day and none at night. He risked another flicker of light. Anyone who happened to be outside would have seen it—but he had to get a bearing through the place. He moved again in the dark —past the furnace and the bins of coal. Ashes gritted under his feet.
A door at the end of the furnace room opened into a corridor. He found its handle. Beyond that door were no more windows, so he turned on his light and locked the switch.
There was dust enough and cob-webbing enough to suggest that the passage had not been used for years. But the concrete floor was blurred with the evidence of feet going to, and coming from, the wine cellar.

Want War Department To Check Aids Draft Status
WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The senate military committee wound up hearings on limited national service legislation by asking the War department to survey the draft eligibility of 204,000 of its civilian employees.
Acting Chairman Johnson (D-Colo.) said the hearings, which lasted two weeks, are at an end and that the committee will meet early next week to discuss the house-approved work-or-jail bill and various proposed amendments and substitutes.

Allies Expected To Deal With German Commanders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Allies are expected to deal with German field commanders—not the Nazi government or the Wehr-macht's general staff—when the hour comes for imposing unconditional surrender terms on the beaten enemy.
This was suggested in competent quarters today as the answer to one question arising out of the Yalta conference announcement.
The Big Three conferees said the unconditional surrender terms would be presented. The declaration apparently ruled out both the government and the general staff by emphasizing the intention to destroy both.
It is expected the terms will be confined to those of purely military aspect. Commitments of a political nature would be left for other individuals or groups.

Vitrified Products Co. Acquires New Property

The American Vitrified Products
Co., a New Jersey corporation operating 28 plants in the country, has acquired title to about 11 acres of land in the East End of East Liverpool adjoining its plant there.
The purchase was made from Joseph Wells of Newell, W. Va. and is the old site of the Homer Laughlin China Co., which moved its plant to Newell several years ago.
The deeds were made from Wells to David Romig who immediately conveyed the land to the company.
Revenue stamps on the deeds indicated the sale price was between $8,500 and $9,000.
The company's main plant is in Lisbon where "hot-tops" for use in steel mills are manufactured.
In the Grecian theater, important actors were given added height by wearing built-up shoes.

SERG. McQUISTON GIVEN PHILIPPINE LIBERATION MEDAL

WITH THE 77TH INFANTRY
DIVISION ON LEYTE—Serg. John J. McQuiston, Salem, Ohio, has earned another battle star for his participation in the recent Leyte campaign when he marched again with the liberation forces of the 77th (Statue of Liberty) Infantry division.
Hitting the beaches on D-day, he served as radio repairman for a combat engineer battalion during both this and the Guam operation.
On the Guam operation, Serg.
McQuiston set up the Command post and laid telephone wires for immediate and rapid communication in the first few crucial hours of the battle.
"Speaking of battle experiences," says the veteran sergeant, "the first few days and nights in a foxhole were experiences I'll never forget."
We were under constant threat of Japanese attacks, and those mortar shells which fell all around the shell I was near, remain in one's memory a long time, too."
Prior to his incursion, Serg. Mc-Quiston was employed in the tire industry. In June 20, 1941, he began his basic training with the Field Artillery at Ft. Sill, Okla. He joined the unit he now serves in Ft. Hancock, N. J., in 1942.
A veteran of two campaigns, Serg.
McQuiston is authorized to wear the Good Conduct medal, the Asiatic-Pacific medal with two stars and the Philippine Liberation ribbon with one star.
Serg. McQuiston is the son of John L. McQuiston, R. D. 2, Salem.
In seven generations of the Bach family there were 49 musicians.

WOMEN IN '40's HOT FLASHES?

Are You Embarrassed By HOT FLASHES?
If you, like so many women, between the ages of 35 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, nervous tension, irritability, are a bit blue at times—all due to the functional middle age period peculiar to women—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms.
For almost a century thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported remarkable benefits. Many wise women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against such annoying distress.
Lydia Pinkham's Compound helps nature. It also has what Doctors call a strong tonic effect. Follow label directions. Worth trying!

Best Known Home Remedy For Relieving Miseries of CHILDREN'S COLDS

Today most young mothers refuse to take needless chances with untried remedies, when the children have colds... they use good old Vicks VapoRub. Do as they do! At bedtime, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back.
At once the penetrating-stimulating action of VapoRub (as pictured) starts to help relieve congestion and irritation in upper bronchial tubes, ease coughing, soothe muscular soreness or tightness, help clear the head, making breathing easier. Then for hours VapoRub keeps on working. It invites restful sleep. And often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone! Remember this...
ONLY VAPORUB Gives You this special double action. It's the best known home remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds.
Try it! VICKS VAPORUB

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Aggie's left eyebrow cocked and he touched his Vandyke. These were the words of a querulous old man. They might be, also, the words of a shrewd man, who relied on attack for his defense. Aggie tried a counterattack. "Speaking of snooping Mr. Waite, where were you the night Calder was killed?"

The other man stared glacially. "You do not hesitate to assume my prerogatives. I see I haven't the remotest intention of answering. But I do have every intention of finding out how you learned of my absence. This is my home. You've invaded my privacy sufficiently!"

"Were you—by chance—in the cellar of the club?" Aggie had counted upon the element to have some effect. Waite's reaction, was, however, an enlargement of that expectancy. The man began to tremble. His face contracted into an expression of fear, of hate, of misanthropy and fury. His pince-nez flickered, glared the electric lights. "Curse Sarah!" he finally croaked. "Curse the blabbing old fool! Get out of here!"

Aggie turned to Danielle. "Come on." But the girl stood still. "Haven't you forgotten to call the police?" Aggie looked at her, smiling faintly. "So I have!" "Get out!" Waite repeated. In a hobbling frenzy, he rushed across his living room and snatched a vase from the mantel. He raised it. "Get out of here, I say!"

Aggie nodded toward the door. "We'll phone from Sarah's." The voice at State Police Headquarters was toneless. "Dr. Davis dead. Medicine Lodge on the Upper Lake Road. We'll send somebody at once."

The servants are waiting there for you," Aggie said. I'll be at my aunt's house. He hung up. The room was flooded with light. Danielle was busy tucking Sarah into the inglenook. Chillum apprehensively took their order for more coffee. They're coming," Aggie said unnecessarily.

Sarah instructed old John in the method of setting a match to the fire laid on the grate, although John had ignited a thousand in the same place. They wanted a fire for psychic comfort—not warmth. "Now Aggie," she said, when she was satisfied, "tell me." Aggie glanced at Danielle. She dropped into a chair, stretched out her legs, and nodded. "Shoot Aggie. I'm all right now." For fifteen minutes, Aggie talked. At the end of that time, he had given his aunt a complete description of the scene in the Davis garage. During the recital, Sarah kept touching her swollen neck with a tentative finger—and jerking it away. She seemed, nevertheless, to have taken a new lease on life; unburdened of her secret, she was very much her usual self. When her nephew finished, she said, "Hunh! George wouldn't kill himself in a million years! Too comical!"

"But he did—apparently." "With Hank's knife? Nonsense!" "You think Henry Bokarty is alive—and around here—and killed him?" Sarah grunted again. "Did I say so? I just said—Danielle's father hadn't a suicidal streak in his bones!"

"Then," Aggie tugged at his beard, "maybe you can explain how the thing was accomplished." "I don't attempt to explain! That's your business. Or Wes Nickman's. You're a scientist. He's a cop. You're supposed to be able to think! I'm merely a woman who knows people. I say, somebody killed Danielle's father! What do you say?" she turned to the girl. Danielle shook her head. "I don't know. He must have done it. There's no other way. There must be something—something else—besides the cache."

He had risen. "I think this is an excellent time to be in that cellar. Besides—I used to play games in the wine cellar. It was fun." Sarah glanced at the girl opposite her. Firelight emphasized the concentration with which Danielle was looking back at Aggie. The girl's head finally shook and she said, "Don't go there, Aggie. It might be—dangerous. And this isn't the kind of business for a—a—person like you to get into."

"Danger?" he repeated. "You mean—I should stay out of it because it's dangerous?" Danielle nodded. "That's exactly what I mean! After all, you're a professor—not a cop. You can't go barging into a cellar at night!" He seemed perplexed. "But—I'm keen to! I'd enjoy beating Wes to it! I don't mind danger." He noticed the way in which his aunt was regarding the girl. "Right, Sarah. Send her out of the room—and give me the dope. And—Danielle. Remind me to tell you about the time I was lost on the ice floor for a week—and a night in Cambridge—and one thing or another. Danger! Good Lord!"

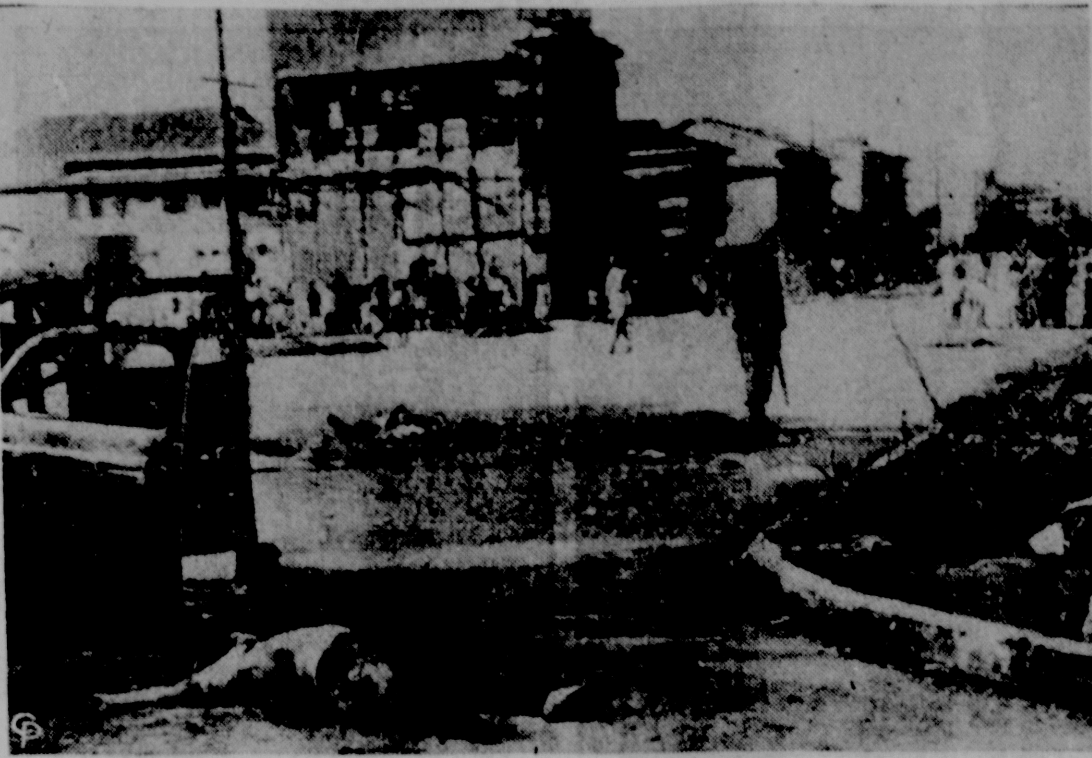

Sarah grinned. Danielle went reluctantly into the kitchen. Sarah pulled her nephew close. "You might shift from that pajama top," she said, "to a sweater. You look absurd." Aggie started, glanced at his clothes, and blushed. In a whisper, she told him. Five minutes later, he left the house. The moon had vanished. Clouds covered most of the sky. In the east, a few stars still shone. Through the trees, in the distance, lights twinkled at the Davis house, where the servants were queasily waiting for the police. Aggie cut up the hill toward the club on a footpath. The building would be locked. Jack Browne and the servants would be asleep on the upper floors. He did not wish to waken them.

He came to the edge of the trees, moved from one lilac to another, and finally onto the side porch. There was not a light in the clubhouse. He swung out a screen. The first window was locked; the third was not. Aggie raised it and went in. He smelled moth flakes when he passed the stuffed moose head. He used a flashlight once, for less than a second, to find a way through the tables and divans in the main lounge. In the same manner, he passed through the dining room to the pantry and from the pantry into the stately, institutional small of the club kitchen. He found the door to the main cellar, carefully opened it, entered, closed it, and started down the steps.

When he was midway on them, he listened. An automatic pump was going somewhere below. It made a muffled, rhythmic noise, but, between its beats, there were minute silences. Aggie heard nothing in them. This cellar had windows—opaque squares that let in little light by day and none at night. He risked another flicker of light. Anyone who happened to be outside would have seen it—but he had to get a bearing through the place. He moved again in the dark—past the furnace and the bins of coal. Ashes gritted under his feet. A door at the end of the furnace room opened into a corridor. He found its handle. Beyond that door were no more windows, so he turned on his light and locked the switch. There was dust enough and cobwebbing enough to suggest that the passage had not been used for years. But the concrete floor was blurred with the evidence of feet going to, and coming from, the wine cellar.

Want War Department To Check Aids Draft Status

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The senate military committee wound up hearings on limited national service legislation by asking the War Department to survey the draft eligibility of 264,000 of its civilian employees.

Acting Chairman Johnson (D-Colo.) said the hearings, which lasted two weeks, are at an end and that the committee will meet early next week to discuss the house-approved work-or-jail bill and various proposed amendments and substitutes.

Allies Expected To Deal With German Commanders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Allies are expected to deal with German field commanders—not the Nazi government or the Wehrmacht's general staff—when the hour comes for imposing unconditional surrender terms on the beaten enemy.

This was suggested in competent quarters today as the answer to one question arising out of the Yalta conference announcement.

The Big Three conferred said the unconditional surrender terms would be presented. The declaration apparently ruled out both the government and the general staff by emphasizing the intention to destroy both.

It is expected the terms will be confined to those of purely military aspect. Commitments of a political nature would be left for other individuals or groups.

Vitrified Products Co. Acquires New Property

The American Vitrified Products Co., a New Jersey corporation operating 28 plants in the country, has acquired title to about 11 acres of land in the East End of East Liverpool adjoining its plant there.

The purchase was made from Joseph Wells of Newell, W. Va. and is the old site of the Homer Laughlin China Co., which moved its plant to Newell several years ago.

The deeds were made from Wells to David Romig, who immediately conveyed the land to the company. Revenue stamps on the deeds indicated the sale price was between $8,500 and $9,000.

The company's main plant is in Lisbon where "hot-tops" for use in steel mills are manufactured.

In the Grecian theater, important actors were given added height by wearing built-up shoes.

SERGT. McQUISTON GIVEN PHILIPPINE LIBERATION MEDAL

WITH THE 77TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON LEYTE—Sergeant John J. McQuiston, Salem, Ohio, has earned another battle star for his participation in the recent Leyte campaign when he marched again with the liberation forces of the 77th (Statute of Liberty) Infantry division.

Hitting the beaches on D-day, he served as radio repairman for a combat engineer battalion during both this and the Guam operation.

On the Guam operation, Sgt. McQuiston set up the Command post and laid telephone wires for immediate and rapid communication in the first few crucial hours of the battle.

"Speaking of battle experiences," says the veteran sergeant, "the first few days and nights in a foxhole were experiences I'll never forget. We were under constant threat of Japanese attacks, and those mortar shells which fell all around the jeep I was near, remain in one's memory a long time, too."

Prior to his induction, Sgt. McQuiston was employed in the tire industry. In June 23, 1941, he began his basic training with the Field Artillery at Ft. Sill, Okla. He joined the unit he now serves in Ft. Hancock, N. J., in 1942.

A veteran of two campaigns, Sgt. McQuiston is authorized to wear the Good Conduct medal, the Asiatic-Pacific medal with two stars and the Philippine Liberation ribbon with one star.

Sgt. McQuiston is the son of John L. McQuiston, R. D. 2, Salem.

In seven generations of the Bach family there were 49 musicians.

Hats Go Lavish and Lacey

BY EPSIE KINARD

NEW YORK — Even the beret, which by nature submits to restraint, is a gay hat this spring, and when the dressy bonnet lets go, it makes a girl look as flower-wreathed as the Queen of the May.

Such is the trend toward fussier headpieces, which in many collections lavishly tap the dreamy materials—starchy white lace, "petticoat" straw, horseshair, floppy Milans—and such trimmings as feathers, flowers, jeweled whimsies and cloud-like veiling, to make hats prettier than they've been in seasons.

They're also more airy, transparent and delicately contrived to look as light as a hummingbird on your head, a style reaction from hats so heavy this past winter that they bowed down heads and made many faces look older for the load that they carried.

Typical of the airy look and the romantic trend are the two Walter Florell-designed hats shown above. Making the peek-a-boo and almost transparent beret at the left is starched Swiss lace, reminiscent of the petticoats your grandma wore. It is banded with black velvet ribbon and topped with a single red rose.

At the right is a new floral fancy fashioned to make a Psyche silhouette out of cascading daisies and cornflowers tied with red and white polka-dotted ribbon.

Rule In India Aids Christianity, Claim

The withdrawal of the British government in India would be a severe blow to the spreading of the Christian message among a people who need it badly, Rev. Frederick W. Harding, a missionary under the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society and now back in the United States after 37 years in India, told Rev. S. T. Magann following a talk at the First Baptist church Sunday morning.

During his talk to the local congregation, Rev. Harding told of the superb work being done by the fliers who are jogging back and forth over "The Hump," supplying American, Chinese and British fighters with their necessities.

He also told of the long, hard hours and the problems faced every day by persons aiding the fighting men and the natives in that war-torn area. He has spent 37 years in India, and he rates his last three there the most severe he has ever seen.

In a discussion with the Salem pastor following his talk, he said the British influence on India was the best thing for the nation, and he warned that a British withdrawal would set the country back many years.

"Gandhi and other Indian leaders are definitely against the Christian movement," he said, "and without the British the work of the missionaries would be an impossible task."

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

(By Associated Press)

WITH THE U. S. 517TH PARACHUTE COMBAT TEAM — Ever, parachute trooper sweats cut that 13th "black cat" jump. Corp. Burton E. Meador, Waco, Texas, made his without benefit of a parachute. He was dozing in his helmet in a frozen sector of Belgium one night when flames swept through his third floor room. A fellow trooper accidentally had kicked over a can of gasoline and a stream of it ran by a hot stove and ignited. There was only one sure exit—a window—and there was a three-floor drop to the ground. Meador didn't hesitate. He dived out the window, counting from force of habit as he fell, and plunged into a deep snowdrift—unhurt. "That was my 13th jump—and I didn't even have time to worry about it," said Meador.

A Nazi military decoration made a perfect target for Pvt. Ellwood Dobbins, of Boston, Mass.

Moving forward on the flank of a company attack, Dobbins saw a German wearing an iron cross on his chest about 10 yards away. Dobbins put a bullet directly through the medal—and the enemy heart behind it.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

In an attack to relieve a pinched down parachute company, Pfc. Donald "Kitty" Karr, of Barbenton, Ohio, hit the dirt on the top of a small knoll when small arms fire splattered around him.

Suddenly he heard German voices directly under him—and realized that he was lying on a Nazi dugout.

Karr, who speaks little German called out in a stern voice. "Throw your rifles outside and surrender."

Out came the rifles followed by three Germans with their hands up. All Karr had for a weapon was an empty mortar tube!

Returning from a sniper hunt to clean out some woods for his infantry company, Pvt. Gerald G. Stokes, of Tampa, Fla., became separated from his group.

When he bumped into the men from the relieving infantry unit he walked up to the company and said: "What's going on?"

The captain took one look at his "gott mit uns" belt, his iron cross and Nazi bayonetted battlefield souvenirs—and put him under arrest as a Nazi suspect.

"I am a paratrooper," yelled Stokes.

"You're too small to be a paratrooper," replied the captain.

Stokes was herded back to a prisoner of war pen. Someone recognized him and a few minutes later he was free and boiling mad. He gave the captain a meaning look as he stalked away.

"It's funny," said the captain. "I thought he was the first prisoner we had taken with a southern accent."

A new way to double a cigarette ration has been found by Pvt. David G. Twight, of Hawthorne, Wis.

He was with a group building an "up front" bridge and the enemy was pounding away with 88s. During one "10 minute break" Dave reached into his jacket for a cigarette.

He found a piece of shrapnel had ripped through the jacket, cutting his pack of cigarettes squarely in half.

"Here, fellows, have a quickie," he proffered. "I've got two packs of 'em."

Their Soldier's a Lucky Guy

Luckier than most soldiers overseas is Maj Joe Hattenbach, of Cleveland. Every single day, somewhere in Italy, he knows that from one to three letters from his family are on their way to him. They've been doing that ever since he entered the service in September, 1942. So far he has received about 1000. He also writes a daily letter home, and the photo above shows Mrs. Hattenbach, with daughters Nancy, left, and Marcia, looking over some of their "fan mail."

Nine Suggestions to Car Owners Offered By Hine

Since government officials recognize the family automobile as an important cog in the transportation network, Mr. Hine of the H. I. Hine Motor Co., 301 W. State st., has prepared a list of nine suggestions which he urges all car owners to follow to keep their cars in good running order. They are:

1. Have your car lubricated every 500 to 1,000 miles. Oil and grease stop wear on parts.
2. Attend to repairs immediately. Check any unusual noises and action that may develop.
3. Test and adjust the brakes twice a year. Faulty brakes result in undue wear on both car and tires, and cause accidents.
4. Keep tire pressure exactly right. Car owners may lose 20 to 25 per cent of tire life through under-inflation alone.
5. Switch (rearrange) tires every 2,000 miles. This will lengthen tire life up to 25 per cent.
6. Check on wheel alignment twice a year. Improper alignment causes undue wear of tires and parts.
7. Check battery and radiator every two weeks. Use a good quality anti-freeze during the winter.
8. Get a motor check-up twice a year. This may save fuel costs and big repair bills, plus time lost in garages.
9. Correct any bad driving habits you may have including weaving in traffic, clutch riding, racing the motor and excessive speed.

Insulation of Home Not Luxury, But A Necessity

Fortification of the home against the hazards of a fuel shortage is a move dictated by prudence and patriotism.

Now, more than ever, home owners are studying the value of insulation as a conservation and health-safeguarding measure. Insulation is no longer a luxury; it is a war time necessity. Home owners who install adequate insulation are performing a patriotic service. They are saving fuel for the war factories and protecting the health of their families.

A correctly insulated home is a lifetime dividend - paying investment. Insulation does not wear out. It's there for the life of the building, saving the owner the cost of several tons of coal or other fuel every year and at the same time giving the occupants of the home a draft-free, warmer home in winter and a cooler home during the hot months of summer.

The cost of insulating a home is usually less than you would expect and the estimate for the work is free. Simply phone R. B. Finley of the Finley Music Co. and he will arrange an appointment at your convenience, and soon a trained crew of workmen will be spreading a blanket of Johns Manville "Blown" Rock Wool around your home that will give you everlasting comfort.

Wiggers Has Good Repair Parts To Put In Your Car

Those who own automobiles seldom give it a thought, but these cars have taken all the depreciation in value they ever will if the owners will keep them in good mechanical repair. The appearance or age count for very little.

It does pay big dividends to keep your car in good mechanical repair. Never was there a time when those few dollars spent mean so much and the best is you can still get genuine factory repair parts if you patronize a reliable dealer, such as Pete Wiggers' Super Service Stations, dealers for the DeSoto and Plymouth cars in this district.

Russians Using Rakish Looking Tank, Nazi Says

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Russians are using a new rakish looking tank called the pike and mounting a 120 mm. gun in their rampage through Silesia, a German war correspondent reported today.

He said it was "far superior" to the Joseph Stalin, the giant tank which the Germans first reported in use in the Russian winter offensive. The Stalin tank was said by the Germans to be bigger than their own 60-ton Royal Tigers.

Value of Livestock
Declines 7 Percent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Reflecting reductions in numbers of hogs, sheep and chickens, the value of livestock on the nation's farms declined $668,650,000 or more than seven per cent in 1944.
The agriculture department reported this today, saying the sharpest reduction in numbers was in hogs, which on Jan. 1, 1945, were 28 per cent below that date of 1944.
The reductions in hogs and sheep are being reflected in current and prospective short supplies of meats for civilians.
The value of livestock Jan. 1 was estimated in the department's annual inventory report at $8,868,437,200 compared with $9,537,087,000 a year earlier.
The 1944 decline in numbers was caused largely, the report said, by a tight feed situation during the first half of the year and a generally less favorable relationship of livestock prices to feed prices. Feed supplies were restored to a favorable level by last fall's bumper harvest.
In terms of grain-consuming animal units, the 1944 decrease in livestock was 14 per cent. The reduction came after livestock numbers had increased steadily from 1938 to 1943 to reach a record peak on Jan. 1, 1944.
The feed situation at the beginning of 1945 was described as more favorable for livestock producers than it was a year ago. The supply of feed grains per animal unit was said to have been the highest in more than 20 years.

Ohio College Cage Season Reaches Final Stages This Week

Ohio Conference Settled But Big Ten Hangs Fire

(By The Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—The 1944-45 Ohio College basketball season virtually reaches the finish line this week even though the final decision in both the Ohio Conference and the Big Ten may have to be carried over into the first week of March.

This week's 13-game program will wind up the season for all teams except Akron and Wooster but the possible delay in determining those two Conference titles stems from this situation:

If Ohio State closes out its schedule with victories here Friday and Saturday night over Illinois and Indiana, the Bucks still can gain at least a tie for the Big Ten crown providing someone knocks off Iowa at the far end of the season.

As far as the doze sheets are concerned Akron's Zippers have the Ohio Conference championship in the bag but they'll have to lick Heidelberg Wednesday night and Wooster on Feb. 28 to make it legal. Since Heidelberg and Wooster have only a total of two Conference triumphs between them all season, they apparently have little with which to cope with the high scoring Zippers.

Ohio State's two games and Bowling Green's chance to get revenge for its only defeat of the season will be the highlights of the big week of competition. The Bee-Gees, who have lost only to Great Lakes in 21 games, will entertain the Bluejackets Tuesday night and they'll wind up their season later in the week against Baldwin-Wallace and Case.

Here is the week's schedule: Tonight—Kentucky at Ohio University; Tuesday—Wooster at Otterbein; Ashland at Camp Perry; Wayne at Cincinnati; Great Lakes at Bowling Green; Wednesday—Miami at Denison; Heidelberg at Akron; Thursday—Otterbein at Ashland; Wooster at Muskingum; Friday—Illinois at Ohio State; Toledo at Wayne; Bowling Green at Baldwin-Wallace.

Saturday—Otterbein at Wittenberg; Indiana at Ohio State; Ohio University at Akron; Capital at Heidelberg; Bowling Green at Case; Kentucky at Cincinnati; Kent State at Wooster.

Ohio State knocked out of the Big Ten lead by Illinois Friday night, got right back into its winning ways Saturday night against Indiana, never expected, raced to a 68 to 45 victory with Arnold Risen scoring 24 points.

But the damage to their title hopes already had been done. Otherwise, the Saturday night competition was marked by Akron's climb to within five percentage points of Bowling Green in the statewide standings. The Zippers walloped Cincinnati, 66 to 38, for their 18th victory in 19 games and they piled up that sizeable count despite the fact their scoring ace, Fritz Nagy, was held to only a dozen points.

Earlier in the week, Akron had gotten over what was hoped to be its last big Ohio Conference hurdle by drubbing Baldwin-Wallace. The Zips have won 10 straight league games. Capital and Denison, the third and fourth ranking teams in the state on a percentage basis, also registered victories. Capital rolled up a 72 to 28 count on Heidelberg, 42 to 38. The Big Red held Oberlin's Bob Strand to four points after he had averaged 16½ a game through all previous tilts.

Capital now has won 13 of 15, both defeats coming at the hands of Otterbein, and Denison has won 13 of 17.

Baldwin-Wallace hung a 67 to 47 beating on Wooster after holding only a 28 to 25 halftime margin. A 30-point scoring spree by Jim Mackey helped propel the university to a 59 to 44 triumph over Muskingum, and Kent State walloped Camp Perry 72 to 47.

Wittenberg ran into disaster when it invaded Indiana and took a 46 to 38 beating from Earlham college. Case, which had beaten only Carnegie Tech in 13 previous games, handed a 43 to 38 setback to Ohio Wesleyan and thus climbed out of the cellar in the statewide standings.

TRINITY QUINTET HOLDS SWAY OVER CHURCH LOOP PLAY

Columbia, St. Paul's Win Games Last Week: Meet In Title Clash

The Trinity church leaguers continued on their way to the second round crown by defeating the Methodists, 44-32 at the Memorial building Saturday afternoon.

The Nazarenes, not scheduled this week, remains unbeaten in two games this round. The other games Saturday saw the Panthers take a 69-33 lacing from a high-powered Presbyterian group and the St. Paul's aggregation pull their second win in three games from the Baptists, 38-30.

St. Paul's is now resting in third place and the Presbyterians in fourth with a win and a loss. The Baptists hold down fifth and the

SALEM EXPECTED TO BE "SEEDED"

Salem loomed as an almost certain "seeded" team in the Youngstown Class A sectional tournament today as coaches and faculty managers made ready for the annual drawings at South High school at 7 tonight.

Almost sure of a bracket of their own, the Quakers will probably draw the coveted spots along with Canton McKinley, Canton Timken and Warren. Salem's record, like Warren's, is the third best in the field of 26 teams.

The only possibility of Salem not being "seeded" in the tournament lay in the city championship claims of Youngstown South, a team which has lost six games in 18. Salem has won 14 of 17 so far this year.

Drawing For Columbiana Tourney At Lisbon Now Arranged

Drawings for the Columbiana County Class B Varsity and Reserves tournament are announced.

The cage event will be staged at David Anderson High school, Lisbon, Tuesday and Friday.

In the inaugural, reserve teams of Salineville and New Waterford will clash. Fairfield Township and New Waterford varsities mix in the feature.

Friday's clashes pair the winner of the Salineville-New Waterford reserve game vs. Fairfield's seconds. The victor of the Fairfield-New Waterford varsity setto battles Salineville High.

The tourney varsity moves on to McDonald.

TWO UNDEFEATED MCGUIRE SQUADS MEET SATURDAY

Win From Methodist Five To Hold Top Place In Second Round Race

A deadlock in Mickey McGuire league standings was still in effect today after Columbia street and St. Paul's aggregations posted their fourth straight second round victories at the Memorial building Saturday.

Columbia defeated McKinley school 38-29 and the Irish clipped Reilly 29-17. In the other fray, Fourth street moved into third place by cracking Prospect's defenses for a 38-14 win. It was the second in four frays for the third-place outfit.

Prospect, Reilly and McKinley now are sharing the bottom of the heap with three losses and a single win each.

Ohio College Cage Season Reaches Final Stages This Week

Ohio Conference Settled But Big Ten Hangs Fire

(By The Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—The 1944-45 Ohio College basketball season virtually reaches the finish line this week even though the final decision in both the Ohio Conference and the Big Ten may have to be carried over into the first week of March.

This week's 19-game program will wind up the season for all teams except Akron and Wooster but the possible delay in determining those two Conference titles stems from this situation:
If Ohio State closes out its schedule with victories here Friday and Saturday night over Illinois and Indiana, the Bucks still can gain at least a tie for the Big Ten crown providing someone knocks off Iowa at the end of the season.

As far as the Ohio State Zippers are concerned Akron's Zippers have the Ohio Conference championship in the bag but they'll have to lick Heidelberg Wednesday night and Wooster Feb. 28 to make it legal. Since Heidelberg and Wooster have only a total of two Conference triumphs between them all season, they apparently have little with which to cope with the high scoring Zippers.

Ohio State's two games and Bowling Green's chance to get revenge for its only defeat of the season will be the highlights of the big week of competition. The Big Ten, who have lost only to Great Lakes in 21 games, will entertain the Bluejackets Tuesday night and they'll wind up their season later in the week against Baldwin-Wallace and Case.

Here is the week's schedule:
Tonight—Kentucky at Ohio University; Tuesday—Wooster at Otterbein; Ashland at Camp Perry; Wayne at Cincinnati; Great Lakes at Bowling Green; Wednesday—Miami at Denison; Heidelberg at Akron; Thursday—Otterbein at Ashland; Wooster at Muskingum; Friday—Illinois at Ohio State; Toledo at Wayne; Bowling Green at Baldwin-Wallace.

Saturday—Otterbein at Wittenberg; Indiana at Ohio State; Ohio University at Akron; Capital at Heidelberg; Bowling Green at Case; Kentucky at Cincinnati; Kent State at Wooster.

Ohio State knocked out of the Big Ten lead by Illinois Friday night, got right back into its winning ways Saturday night against Indiana's much beaten Hoosiers. The Bucks, never pressed, raced to a 63 to 45 victory with Arnold Risen scoring 24 points.

But the damage to their title hopes already had been done. Otherwise, the Saturday night competition was marked by Akron's climb to within five percentage points of Bowling Green in the statewide standings. The Zippers walloped Cincinnati, 66 to 38, for their 18th victory in 19 games and they piled up that sizeable count despite the fact their scoring ace, Fritz Nagy, was held to only a dozen points.

Earlier in the week, Akron had gotten over what was hoped to be its last big Ohio Conference hurdle by drubbing Baldwin-Wallace. The Zips have won 10 straight league games.

Capital and Denison, the third and fourth ranking teams in the state on a percentage basis, also registered victories. Capital rolled up a 72 to 28 count on Heidelberg and Denison whipped Oberlin, 42 to 38. The Big Red held Oberlin's Bob Strand to four points after he had averaged 18½ a game through all previous tilts.

Capital now has won 13 of 15, both defeats coming at the hands of Otterbein, and Denison has won 13 of 17.
Baldwin-Wallace hung a 67 to 47 beating on Wooster after holding only a 26 to 25 halftime margin. A 30-point scoring spree by Jim Mackey helped Ohio University to a 59 to 44 triumph over Muskingum and Kent State walloped Camp Perry 72 to 47.

Wittenberg ran into disaster when it invaded Indiana and took a 46 to 38 beating from Earlham college. Case, which had beaten only Carnegie Tech in 13 previous games, handed a 43 to 38 setback to Ohio Wesleyan and then climbed out of the cellar in the statewide standings.

TRINITY QUINTET HOLDS SWAY OVER CHURCH LOOP PLAY

Columbia, St. Paul's Win Games Last Week: Meet In Title Clash

The Trinity church leaguers continued on their way to the second round crown by defeating the Methodists, 44-32 at the Memorial building Saturday afternoon.

The Nazarene outfit, not scheduled this week, remains unbeaten in two games this round. The other games Saturday saw the Panthers take a 69-33 lacing from a high-powered Presbyterian group and the St. Paul's aggregation pull their second win in three games from the Baptists, 38-20.

St. Paul's is now resting in third place and the Presbyterians in fourth with a win and a loss. The Baptists hold down fifth and the

REAL ESTATE

HERE IS A ONE-MAN FARM WHICH ANY GOOD FARMER WILL BE PROUD TO POSSESS!

Sixty acres located six miles from Salem and four miles from Lisbon. This land is in a high state of cultivation and lays up high and level so that the crops can be planted early in the spring. An extra good pasture watered by never-failing spring and nice shade trees scattered over the pasture. Children hauled to school. Fruit for home use.
Is improved with good 8-room house, electric, water system and furnace. Large front porch enclosed in glass. Bank barn equipped with stanchion and drinking cups for 12 cows. Three good chicken houses, garage and other necessary outbuildings.
In order to get possession of this farm, it must be sold as the owner would rather not sell after crops are planted.
I have a cheap price on this farm of only $6,800, which is no more than the price of a city home. For more particulars see

TELLS OF PLANE TRIP OVER IWO

Reporter Finds Island On Fire From End to End As Yanks Invade

(United Press War Correspondent William F. Tyree, representing the combined American press, flew over Iwo Jima today shortly after the invasion battle began. The navy photographic plane in which Tyree was riding was forced to turn back, but he was able to resume his trip in a bomber. His eyewitness dispatch follows:)

BY WILLIAM F. TYREE Distributed by the Associated Press

ABOARD A NAVY LIBERATOR BOMBER OVER IWO JIMA, Feb. 19. (Via Navy radio)—Tiny, tough Iwo Jima was ablaze from end to end today as our bomber dropped down into its battle smoke to watch wave after wave of Marines plough ashore from a 800-ship invasion armada for a showdown fight in the enemy's front yard.

From 1,000 feet over the beachhead, it was obvious the Marines had a terrific battle on their hands. Even as the mighty battleships, cruisers and destroyers circled endlessly, sending salvos into the volcanic slopes of the island, I could see Marines dashing for cover on the rocky southeastern beach. Some were far inland toward the airstrip. The Japanese certainly were fighting back from their underground defenses. Twice the Japanese gave us anti-aircraft.

While their defenses were being rattled by offshore bombardments, some fire twinkled at us from the ground.

Smoke and dust covered the island. Two looked like a fat pork chop sizzling in the skillet as carrier planes swept in under us, strafing and bombing every installation they could find.

One fighter crashed in flames just inland from where the Marines struggled to consolidate their beachhead. In the calm waters off the island, hundreds of ships maneuvered endlessly.

There wasn't a single Japanese plane in the sky.

Bursts of orange flames sprang from the muzzles of the battleships, and cruisers' big guns and huge columns of smoke and fire rose skyward from the island seconds later.

I could see many formidable pillboxes along the beaches as well as a few rusty ship hulls, already out of action.

None of our surface forces had been disturbed by enemy counteraction by mid-afternoon.

The invasion armada had spread out for scores of miles around the island. There was no mistaking the fact the Americans arrived to stay on Tokyo's doorstep, but the fight looked as if an awful lot of blood would be spilled before it was over.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., widened his U.S. Third army front in western Germany to 32 miles and captured numerous towns in the Elbe mountains, some within seven miles of the road center of Bitburg.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army fought back two miles into the German Saar basin, capturing 1,000 prisoners and Auer-schacher, six miles southeast of Saarbruecken.

The American First and Ninth armies (and perhaps other formations) were inactive along the Roer river facing Cologne, Bonn and Duesseldorf.

from individuals wanting to give something to the cause. They total more than $6,600,000, the largest being $400,000 for construction of a gymnasium at Wright field, Dayton, O.

Remember those billboard-sized dollar bills? Well, at the end of 1944 there were 42,948,788 pieces of the old paper currency, of all denominations, in circulation, with a value of $170,969,930.

Treasury experts have estimated at $300,208,000 the value of advertising contributed in support of War bond drives between May 1, 1941 and Sept. 30, 1944. The total includes $178,900,000 on the radio; $76,688,000 in newspapers; $24,664,000 in magazines; $19,486,000 in outdoor advertising; and $570,000 in car cards.

Despite the fact many holders of War bonds have cashed in the securities, almost 88 cents out of every savings bond dollar that has come into the Treasury since 1941 has remained available for the prosecution of the war.

A table given the appropriations committee bears out the old saying that taxes keep getting higher. It shows that from 1887, when it was $2.00, the per capita federal tax burden in the United States has rocketed to $289.79 in 1944. However, the cost of collection per $100 of revenue reached a new low, 32 cents, last year. Back in 1887 it cost Uncle Sam $3.40 to collect each $100 he received from the taxpayers.

If you possessed $183.38 last Dec. 31, you were an average person. Money in circulation on that date was $25,307,000,000, or $183.38 per capita on the basis of 136,000,000 men, women and children. Some-body holding out on you?

So far as the treasury is concerned, the current cigarette shortage is being caused largely by large supplies for the armed forces. A study of statistics, department officials said, indicates that heavy withdrawals of tax-free smokes for the fighting men is a major contributing factor to the civilian shortage.

BLOW KILLS MAN, HUNT ASSAILANT

EAST LIVERPOOL, Feb. 19.—Police today intensified their search for the assailant of Steve Phillips, 44-year-old tavern operator, who died yesterday of skull injuries inflicted during a beating last Thursday.

His friends kept constant vigil at his bedside because he frequently mumbled in his native Greek what they thought to be the names of his attackers.

Police Chief Hugh McDermott said he believed Phillips was struck down by robbers who fled before taking $425 from his pockets.

Surrounded when the Scotch "Ladies from Hell" poured into its ruins, created by terrific aerial and ground bombardment. The town is divided by the Niers river eight miles south of Kleve.

OBITUARY

B. FRANKLIN STARBUCK

B. Franklin Starbuck, 83, oldest male member of the Ohio Yearly meeting of the Wilbur Friends and well-known orchardist here for the past 29 years, died at his home at 8 p. m. Saturday of complications following 10 weeks' illness.

Born July 21, 1855, near Barnesville, he was the son of John and Sara Bundy Starbuck. He married Anna Liewellyn at Pennsville on Feb. 17, 1893.

Mr. Starbuck came to Salem 29 years ago from Adena. He was a member of the Sixth Street Friends church.

Surviving, besides his wife, are two daughters, Mary, of the home, Mrs. Martha Hall of Anderson, Ind.; three sons, Albert W. Lewis C. and Jesse R., all of Salem; 15 grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Eva Edkin and Elizabeth Starbuck, both of West Chester, Pa., and Mrs. Alice Peterson of Liscomb, Iowa.

Two daughters, Edith and Emily, preceded him in death.

Funeral service will be held at the Friends meeting house at 3 p. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in the Damascus Friends cemetery.

Friends may call at the home anytime.

MRS. JEFFRIES FUNERAL

Funeral service for Mrs. Lydia Jeffries, 69, wife of Edward A. Jeffries, who died here Saturday, 5, Salem, at 11:45 a. m. Saturday of a diabetic condition following three years' illness, will be held at the Arbaugh-Pearce funeral home at 2 p. m. Tuesday, in charge of Rev. Robert Mosher and Rev. John Williams of Damascus.

Burial will be in Hope cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening.

Born in Meigs county Nov. 29, 1875, Mrs. Jeffries was the daughter of John and Emma Clark. She was a member of the Friends church.

me to believe the time was ripe to go in."

That occurred, he said, on Sept. 13, and he reported his recommendations to Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur.

"Admiral Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur picked up the ball and ran with it," he said, shifting their plans to permit the landing on Leyte on Oct. 20.

Iwo Jima, begun today, would not be as tough as the amphibious assault on Tarawa.

"We have learned a lot since that time," he said.

Iwo Jima, he said, will be of tremendous strategic value, affording a base from which to bomb the Japanese homeland with medium bombers with fighter cover.

The island, which has two airfields, can accommodate three, he said, and "if necessary the seabees will build another island and put four or five on it."

Halsey said he is one of the few people who believe the Japanese will "break" eventually. Asserting that Japanese industrialists see their empire getting into a position to crumble, he added:

"A dollar means as much to them as anyone. When they get the upper hand of the beast in charge of the army they will put out peace feelers, that will be our most dangerous threat until peace is actually declared."

"If we allow a negotiated peace now and do not demand absolute and unconditional surrender it would be the greatest crime in the history of the country."

"The press can do more to help than anyone, to persuade the mothers and fathers of America that such a move would be sentencing their grandsons to death."

Asked whether the Japanese would plan another war even though unconditional surrender were exacted, Halsey replied:

"Not if we are smart."

"It behooves us to make plans for the future and enforce them to be sure they will not start another."

The admiral cautioned that we "better keep our fleet regardless of what happens in a world league."

He said the quality of Japanese pilots is "deteriorating all the time" and that while the enemy has had some new-type planes recently, "we shoot them down just the same as the others."

Halsey said the Japanese, their control of the seas lost, will attempt to establish land routes to their southern conquests.

base in the Marianas' 800 miles to the south.

The Fifth fleet under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, including more fast battleships and cruisers than ever before assembled for any operation, provides a safeguard against a Japanese naval thrust toward the two beaches.

It was doubtful the elusive Japanese fleet would venture within range. Bombers flying from the mainland were the sole immediate threat.

Iwo has two operative airfields and a third under construction.

ness. Some tumbled in the dining room. Others evidently raced out into the hallway. They were cut down after running a few steps.

Still others started upward toward the chapel. Many were slaughtered on the stairs or collapsed into a pile at the bottom. One Filipino woman lay on the stairs, her head on her outstretched hand.

Others reached the chapel before the Japanese killed them, even before the altar.

Their blood was thick on the floor and walls of this quiet sanctuary.

Over all hung the sickening stench of death, for they had lain that way for a week.

After the first attack Cosgrave found himself under two or three others. He remained there until 10 o'clock that night. When all was quiet, he crawled painfully up the stairs into the chapel, where he hid beneath the altar.

Cosgrave had been bayoneted twice in the chest. He remained beneath the chapel for a week, living on water drained from flower vases and waters used for holy communion.

He frequently crawled from his hiding place to administer extreme unction to those dying from wounds.

"I believe only eight or ten survived of the 70 in the college," said the Australian priest.

No really half the victims were women and children, many of them babies.

Some had been bayoneted repeatedly. Ten of the victims were believed to be American priests.

Ohio Marine Killed When 7 Planes Crash In West

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

Tokyo and Yokohama last Friday and Saturday with 1,500 carrier-based warplanes. The American air fleet destroyed 500 enemy planes, damaged at least 150 more, sank four warships and ten cargo vessels, and planted their bombs in some of Japan's most important war plants.

While all this was going on, the American carriers and a huge fleet of warships lay less than 300 miles off Japan. It was the greatest challenge we have offered the Japanese navy to come out and fight, and it's significant that the Mikado's sailors clung to their home shores.

It was an admission that the Allied navy rule the Pacific and that the Japanese dare not risk their fleet in an all-out action. They are conserving it for the day when the Allies drive against Japan for invasion, and that likely is the smartest thing the little men now can do with what remains of their navy.

TELLS OF PLANE TRIP OVER IWO

Reporter Finds Island On Fire From End to End As Yanks Invade

(United Press War Correspondent William F. Tyree, representing the combined American press, flew over Iwo Jima today shortly after the invasion battle began. The navy photographic plane in which Tyree was riding was forced to turn back, but he was able to resume his trip in a bomber. His eyewitness dispatch follows.)

ABOARD A NAVY LIBERATOR BOMBER OVER IWO JIMA, Feb. 19. (Via Navy radio)—Tiny, tough Iwo Jima was ablaze from end to end today as our bomber dropped down into its battle smoke to watch wave after wave of Marines plough ashore from an 800-ship invasion armada for a showdown fight in the enemy's front yard.

From 1,000 feet over the beachhead, it was obvious the Marines had a terrific battle on their hands. Even as the mighty battleships, cruisers and destroyers circled endlessly, sending salvos into the volcanic slopes of the island, I could see Marines dashing for cover on the rocky southeastern beach. Some were far inland toward the airstrip.

The Japanese certainly were fighting back from their underground defenses. Twice the Japanese gave us anti-aircraft.

While their defenses were being riddled by offshore bombardments, some fire twinkled at us from the ground.

Smoke and dust covered the island. Two looked like a fat pork chop sizzling in the skillet as carrier planes swept in under us, strafing and bombing every installation they could find.

One fighter crashed in flames just inland from where the Marines struggled to consolidate their beachhead. In the calm waters off the island, hundreds of ships maneuvered endlessly.

There wasn't a single Japanese plane in the sky.

Bursts of orange flames sprang from the muzzles of the battleships, and cruisers' big guns and huge columns of smoke and fire rose skyward from the island seconds later.

I could see many formidable pillboxes along the beaches as well as a few rusty ship hulls, already out of action.

None of our surface forces had been disturbed by enemy counteraction by mid-afternoon.

The invasion armada had spread out for scores of miles around the island. There was no mistaking the fact the Americans arrived to stay on Tokyo's doorstep, but the fight looked as if an awful lot of blood would be spilled before it was over.

from individuals wanting to give something to the cause. They total more than $6,600,000, the largest being $400,000 for construction of a gymnasium at Wright field, Dayton, O.

Remember those billboard-sized dollar bills? Well, at the end of 1944 there were 42,948,788 pieces of the old paper currency, of all denominations, in circulation, with a value of $170,969,930.

Treasury experts have estimated at $300,208,000 the value of advertising contributed in support of War bond drives between May 1, 1941 and Sept. 30, 1944. The total includes $178,800,000 on the radio; $76,688,000 in newspapers; $24,664,000 in magazines; $19,486,000 in outdoor advertising; and $570,000 in car cards.

Despite the fact many holders of War bonds have cashed in the securities, almost 88 cents out of every savings bond dollar that has come into the Treasury since 1941 has remained available for the prosecution of the war.

A table given the appropriations committee bears out the old saying that taxes keep getting higher. It shows that from 1887, when it was $2.00, the per capita federal tax burden in the United States has rocketed to $289.79 in 1944. However, the cost of collection per $100 of revenue reached a new low, 32 cents, last year. Back in 1887 it cost Uncle Sam $3.40 to collect each $100 he received from the taxpayers.

If you possessed $183.38 last Dec. 31, you were an average person. Money in circulation on that date was $25,307,000,000, or $183.38 per capita on the basis of 138,000,000 men, women and children. Somebody holding out on you?

So far as the treasury is concerned, the current cigarette shortage is being caused largely by large supplies for the armed forces. A study of statistics, department officials said, indicates that heavy withdrawals of tax-free smokes for the fighting men is a major contributing factor to the civilian shortage.

To Days of Revolution

PHILADELPHIA—Wartime price control is nothing new here—in fact, it's 169 years old.

The Continental Congress approved the establishment of a price control program in 1776. Among the items regulated were coffee, rum, molasses, cocoa, chocolate, pepper and salt.

Boy, Four, Found On Snow Bank, Dies of Exposure

MANSFIELD, Feb. 19.—Four-year-old Leroy Roddy of nearby Shiloh died of exposure late Saturday night, shortly after his father found him on a snowbank near their farm home. The boy had been missing since noon.

me to believe the time was ripe to go in."

That occurred, he said, on Sept. 13, and he reported his recommendations to Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur.

"Admiral Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur picked up the ball and ran with it," he said, shifting their plans to permit the landing on Leyte on Oct. 20.

Two Jima, begun today, would not be as tough as the amphibious assault on Tarawa.

"We have learned a lot since that time," he said.

Two Jima, he said, will be of tremendous strategic value, affording a base from which to bomb the Japanese homeland with medium bombers with fighter cover.

The island, which has two airfields, can accommodate three, he said, and "if necessary the seaboards will build another island and put four or five on it."

But such a move would be the people who believe the Japanese will "break" eventually. Asserting that Japanese industrialists see their empire getting into a position to crumble, he added:

"A dollar means as much to them as anyone. When they get the upper hand of the beasts in charge of the army they will put out peace feelers that will be our most dangerous threat until peace is actually declared."

"If we allow a negotiated peace now and do not demand absolute and unconditional surrender it would be the greatest crime in the history of the country."

"The press can do more to help than anyone, to persuade the mothers and fathers of America that such a move would be sentencing their grandsons to death."

Asked whether the Japanese would plan another war even though unconditional surrender were exacted, Halsey replied:

"Not if we are smart."

"It behooves us to make plans for the future and enforce them to be sure they will not start another."

The admiral cautioned that we "better keep our fleet regardless of what happens in a world league."

He said the quality of Japanese pilots is "deteriorating all the time" and that while the enemy has had some new-type planes recently, "we shoot them down just the same as the others."

Halsey said the Japanese, their control of the seas lost, will attempt to establish land routes to their southern conquests.

base in the Marianas 800 miles to the south.

The Fifth fleet under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, including more fast battleships and cruisers than ever before assembled for any operation, provides a safeguard against a Japanese naval thrust toward the two beaches.

It was doubtful the elusive Japanese fleet would venture within range. Bombers flying from the mainland were the sole immediate threat.

Two has two operative airfields and a third under construction.

ness. Some tumbled in the dining room. Others evidently raced out into the hallway. They were cut down after running a few steps.

Still others started upward toward the chapel. Many were slaughtered on the stairs or collapsed into a pile at the bottom. One Filipino woman lay on the stairs, her head on her outstretched hand.

Others reached the chapel before the Japanese killed them, even before the altar.

Their blood was thick on the floor and walls of this quiet sanctuary.

Or all hung the sickening stench of death, for they had lain that way for a week.

After the first attack Cosgrave found himself under two or three others. He remained there until 10 o'clock that night. When all was quiet, he crawled painfully up the stairs into the chapel, where he hid beneath the altar.

Cosgrave had been bayoneted twice in the chest. He remained beneath the chapel for a week, living on water drained from flower vases and wafers used for holy communion.

He frequently crawled from his hiding place to administer extreme unction to those dying from wounds.

"I believe only eight or ten survived of the 70 in the college," said the Australian priest.

Nearly half the victims were women and children, many of them babies.

Some had been bayoneted repeatedly.

Ten of the victims were believed to be American priests.

The War Today

Tokyo and Yokohama last Friday and Saturday with 1,500 carrier-based warplanes. The American air fleet destroyed 509 enemy planes, damaged at least 150 more, sank four warships and ten cargo vessels, and planted their bombs in some of Japan's most important plants.

While all this was going on, the American carriers and a huge fleet of warships lay less than 300 miles off Japan. It was the greatest challenge we have offered the Japanese navy to come out and fight, and it's significant that
